International Family Missions

The end of summer is here, and like most people, I am welcoming the change of pace. The summer was very busy with teams and interns. The time flew and before I knew it, I was saying goodbye to the girls as they were moving on to different things in their lives. It is always a privilege to me to be a part of someone's life, but also to watch their spiritual and personal growth as they are challenged to step out of their comfort zone and being there to guide them along the way. I have enjoyed pouring into them, sharing my experiences (both highs and lows of my spiritual life), and sharing with them my love for the people here and the culture. I know that God used all of us here to be a part of their lives. It will be fun to see where God takes them from here.

Colegio Ganley

School has just started, so there a blurry of activity as they are getting the kids settled for the year. They are starting the year with one less teacher, but praying the Lord provides soon. My sister was here for the summer and was able to spend quite a bit of time with me at the school. During that time, she helped put together the library, which previously consisted of boxes of books that were unorganized. They have finally received their certification, something they have been up to their ears in paperwork about. This means they can start the paperwork for Jr. High school they want to add on. They are currently building a third floor to accommodate this. But with the lack of teams coming to Juarez, it is taking longer than anticipated. I have really come to respect the directors as I see them go through good times and bad. They continue to put their trust in the Lord, because that is really where all of our provision comes from.

Prayer Needs

- Finances
- Good church
- Wisdom in the next step at the end of the year

On a Personal Note

The summer was busy with people coming and going and with a lot of things to be done. I look back and realize that I have had someone living in my house or to be responsible for here on campus since February. I now have an empty house and have a lot more of my own time on my hands. It is hard not be overwhelmed with loneliness in the midst of the people and "ministry" around me. I am realizing it is hard to be a single person on the mission field. I know that God is with me always, but it has been a while since I have had a good support system through a church here. This is something I am struggling with and praying about. Please pray about this with me.
